Mamprim clicked a picture of the man with his dog and posted it on the Facebook, commenting, "I came across this today, at the hospital where I work, at 3 A.M. While their master (who lives on the street) was being treated, his companions waited at the door." A simple person, without luxury, who depends on help to overcome the hunger, cold, pain, the evils of the world, has by his side the best companions, and the exchange is reciprocal.

An exchange of love, affection, warmth and understanding. A person who confessed to us that he stops eating to feed them. Mamprim continued.

Speaking to The Dodo, Mamprim said, "They are all well taken care of".

The faithful canines were anxiously anticipating César's safe return. Fortunately, the animals reunited with their owner in no time.

Not wanting to keep César and his companions apart, the staff let the dogs inside after giving him the medication he needed. They even offered some food to César. "Believe me, he ate some and saved a bit to give the dogs later." Mamprim recalled.

An hour later, César left the hospital with the four dogs trailing behind, happily wagging their tails.

"I do not know what his life is like, or why he's on the street, but I admire the respect and love he has for his little friends." Mamprim concluded. "Seeing them like this, waiting at the door, just shows how much they are well cared for and loved.

Even though César had little material possessions and no kins to turn to, he was never alone because he had his warm and loving companions.

8th_english_4 to 6.indd 176 16-12-2022 14:25:44